New Zealand by Sea
Auckland to Milford Sound
Aboard the Caledonian Sky

Gordon Turnbull
General Editor, Yale Boswell Editions
Dear Yale Traveler

I felt a stirring in my mind to go upon such an undertaking.” So wrote the Scottish diarist James Boswell on 18 April 1776, soon after meeting in London the great explorer of the south seas, Captain James Cook, and hearing his accounts of New Zealand and other lands of the southern oceans. He reflected the great global excitement aroused by the new voyages of discovery.

Now I invite you to join me on our own exploration of remarkable New Zealand, from the vibrant city of Auckland on the North Island to spectacular Milford Sound on the South Island, aboard the Caledonian Sky, ideally suited for cruising along craggy coastlines and into the beautiful waters of remote and wild Fiordland. We’ll learn about Maori culture in Rotorua and at the stunning Te Papa Tongarewa Museum, which brings to life the history of New Zealand’s indigenous people. We’ll visit the Canterbury Museum’s Hall of Antarctic Discovery in Christchurch and the Royal Albatross Centre at Taiaroa Head, listen for the strange “dingdong” call of the bellbird on Stewart Island, and marvel at the sheer granite walls and tumbling waterfalls of Doubtful and Milford Sounds in Fiordland, a region largely unchanged since the days of Captain Cook.

As General Editor of the Yale Boswell Editions, I have come to learn much about the impact of these regions on the European imagination in Boswell’s time. And, born and raised in Sydney, I grew up appreciating the literature, art, and cultural and natural wonders of my trans-Tasman neighbors. I much look forward to sharing my thoughts with you during our voyage.

Kia ora,

Gordon Turnbull
